

Outcome

Outcome of the Master of Social Work (MSW) degree is a graduate-level program that prepares students for careers in the social work* profession. Upon completion of an MSW course, students can expect to have gained the following outcomes:

Advanced Knowledge of Social Work Practice: MSW students develop a deeper understanding of social work theories, practice methods, and ethical considerations. They learn to apply this knowledge to a variety of social work settings, including mental health, child welfare, healthcare, and policy advocacy.

Critical Thinking and Analytical Skills: MSW students learn to think critically about social issues and how they impact individuals, families, and communities. They develop analytical skills to assess and evaluate social programs and policies to determine their effectiveness.

Interpersonal and Communication Skills: MSW students learn to communicate effectively with diverse populations, including clients, colleagues, and other professionals. They develop strong interpersonal skills to build relationships and promote positive change.

Research and Evaluation Skills: MSW students learn to conduct research and evaluate social programs and policies. They learn to use evidence-based practices to inform their social work practice and make data-driven decisions.

Advocacy and Leadership Skills: MSW students develop skills in social policy analysis, community organizing, and advocacy. They learn to be effective leaders and agents of social change in their communities.

Cultural Competence: MSW students develop an understanding of the importance of cultural competence in social work practice. They learn to work effectively with individuals from diverse backgrounds and to promote social justice and equity.

Overall, an MSW course provides students with the skills and knowledge they need to become competent and effective social work professionals. MSW graduates are equipped to work in a variety of settings, including government agencies, nonprofit organizations, healthcare facilities, and private practice. They are also well-prepared to pursue advanced degrees or certifications in specialized areas of social work practice.

Outcomes of the Bachelor of Social Work (BSW) degree is an undergraduate-level program that prepares students for entry-level positions in the social work profession. Upon completion of a BSW course, students can expect to have gained the following outcomes:

Generalist Social Work Practice: BSW students develop a foundational understanding of social work theories, practice methods, and ethical considerations. They learn to apply this knowledge to a variety of social work settings, including mental health, child welfare, healthcare, and policy advocacy.

SHRAM SAFALYA EDUCATION SOCIETY'S
PANDIT JAWAHARLAL NEHRU COLLEGE OF SOCIAL WORK,

2016-17 AMALNER

Critical Thinking and Analytical Skills : BSW students learn to think critically about social issues and how they impact individuals, families, and communities. They develop analytical skills to assess and evaluate social programs and policies to determine their effectiveness.

Interpersonal and Communication Skills : BSW students learn to communicate effectively with diverse populations, including clients, colleagues, and other professionals. They develop strong interpersonal skills to build relationships and promote positive change.

Research and Evaluation Skills: BSW students learn to conduct research and evaluate social programs and policies. They learn to use evidence-based practices to inform their social work practice and make data-driven decisions.

Advocacy and Leadership Skills : BSW students develop skills in social policy analysis, community organizing, and advocacy. They learn to be effective leaders and agents of social change in their communities.

Cultural Competence: BSW students develop an understanding of the importance of cultural competence in social work practice. They learn to work effectively with individuals from diverse backgrounds and to promote social justice and equity.

Overall, a BSW course provides students with the foundational knowledge and skills they need to begin their careers in the social work profession. BSW graduates are equipped to work in a variety of settings, including government agencies, nonprofit organizations, healthcare facilities, and private practice. They may also choose to pursue advanced degrees or certifications in specialized areas of social work practice.

COORDINATOR

Prof. Mr. Vijaykumar Waghmare

PRINCIPAL

Dr. P. S. Patil

